

Confederate States of America,

CHIEF PURVEYOR'S OFFICE,

Richmond, Va.,

1862.

CIRCULAR No. 4.

The following will hereafter be the allowance of Medical Supplies for a Regiment in the field:

One Hospital Knapsack and two Haversacks, with medicines and dressings according to table for Knapsacks and Haversacks.

One Regimental Medicine Chest, with contents according to table for Medicine Chests.

One Store Chest, containing instruments, dressings, stimulants, &c., according to table for Store Chests.

One Mess Chest, with Cooking Utensils, &c., according to table for Mess Chests.

Six Litters.

Each Regiment to be supplied as above when it is mustered into service and takes the field, by requisition made upon the Purveying Department.

When Regiments shall have received this outfit, deficiencies that may occur afterwards can be filled by requisitions for current deficiencies only, stating therein the articles on hand as well as those needed, and the reason why additional supplies are needed.

When a probability exists of Surgeons being compelled to abandon a part or all of their supplies, from want of transportation or other sufficient cause, they will turn over such supplies to the Purveyors when the latter may have transportation or means of taking care of them.

Should the Purveyors not be able to take charge of supplies, the Surgeons will turn 'em over to the Quartermaster's Department for storage or transportation to the nearest Purveying Depot. The officer in charge of which will receive them, and account for them, unless the supplies are merely sent to him for temporary storage.

In either case the regulation relating to the transfer of medical supplies will be observed.

By order of the Surgeon General,

E. W. JOHNS,

Mod-Chief Purveyor C. S. Army.
